2. Action plan
How can suppliers be induced to communicate data about their components and materials, and how can these data be exploited internally?
3. Process modeling
What procedures are necessary for data processing?
4. Company Standard
How to obligatory communicate requirements internal and external?
5. Software integration
Which software is suitable for performing data documentation and analysis?
6. Continuous improvement of data quality
How can the internal and external data processing be optimized?

Integrated, practice-oriented solutions with intelligent software

Material compliance means assuring specifications such as REACH, RoHS, Conflict Minerals and CalProp65, as well as specific industry or customer requirements restricting, or even prohibiting, the use of various substances in products, to protect people and the environment. Legally watertight fulfilment of these specifications calls for an integrated and sustained approach.

DIN EN IEC 63000 is the standard for this, describing the state of the art for the mandatory implementation and monitoring of material compliance specifications. The DataCross software inter alia used by tec4U-Solutions in the provision of data services and the supplier communication itself also meets the formulated requirements of this state of the art, and is optimized for maximum user benefit.
